ABOUT ME

My name is Ubaid, and I am a Full-Stack-Developer. I've worked with various freelancers and full-time employers over the past six years on projects ranging from junior-level to project management, website development, and maintenance. I typically work with small and large businesses, as well as individuals, who need a remote developer and want to outsource their work. I specialize in developing large and medium-sized softwares, websites, web applications, and portals with complex and extensive functionality. I can even work as your extended development team or provide turnkey solutions.
